

Tech Tip Tuesday—July 23, 2019

Boot Camp will be on September 9 and 10th in the Philly area!

We are happy to confirm that the next Livery Coach User Experience (aka “Boot Camp”) will be held in the Philadelphia area on Monday, September 9th, and Tuesday, September 10th. If you are making travel arrangements we will also have an open house at our offices on Wednesday, September 11th (if demand warrants it).

We are planning two full days of learning and networking. Topics to be covered will include all about mobile, group management, rates, accounting, and other topics of interest. You will also get a preview of some new features and functions on the horizon. We will allow ample time for questions, sharing of best practices, suggestions, and networking. It is you, our valued customers, who help make Livery Coach what it is, and your ideas are integral to our future development.

We are still finalizing the location but hope to have that wrapped up this week. More details, including venue, room block code, and cost, will be coming soon—so watch for next week’s Tech Tip. We apologize for the delay in getting you all the details...it’s hard to plan things in the summer!
